[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

Mr. Beecher on Van Cott's Letter.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—At an adjourned annual meeting of Plymouth church to-night, Mr Beecher made a lengthy address in reference to the letters of Mrs Moulton and Judge Van Cott, recently published. He alluded to the recent death of a daughter of Judge Van Cott as a reason why it should have been impossible for him to have penned the letter containing falsehoods arraigning Plymouth church, and which a man with the instincts of a [illegible] would not have written. Referring to expressions in Van Cott's letter about the coarseness of the pastor's speech, he said: "There has not a single communication came from the other side but is reeking with the words 'crime of adultery,' perjury, and every other offensive epithet. It has been the stamp of that correspondence, and they have been obliged to sit in the church and listen to the reading of letters which no woman could hear read without blushing. It was proper, in Van Cott's judgment, for a man to read all these letters of this class but improper for the speaker to say a word with regard to them or their falsity. "And is a man," said he, in quivering tones, "to stand in a community as long as I have, and in a church as large as this, which I have built up under God, and after going through [illegible] years, [illegible] to be permitted to [illegible] with her tongue, and at last, when he stands up to say a word, is he to be adjudged coarse?"

Mr. Beecher denied that Plymouth Church had broken up the mutual council and said it had never asked that any churches named by the other side should be excluded. It would have gone on with the council whether these churches withdrew or not. For Mr. Van Cott to state that Plymouth church had broken down the council was absolutely false. They did not desire to go on with two [illegible] already sworn in on the other side. They had complained that the council did not take the evidence of Franklin Woodruff, Francis D. Moulton, Jos. Richards, and Mrs Bradshaw, Mr. Tilton and Mrs. Tilton, Rev. Mr. Storrs and Rev. W. W. Patten, the evangelist of misbelief for the northwest. It was said they would not [illegible] Mrs. Tilton. She appeared twice, and Mrs Bradshaw had refused to appear before the committee. Mr. Richards came and said he would not answer. He held in his hand a note from Mrs Bradshaw containing her refusal; one from Frank [illegible], in which he piously refused to appear, and others of the same class, and now Mr Van Cott charges the committee with having slurred over the evidence. "Then," said the speaker, slowly emphasizing each word, "I wonder how a man, bowed down with fatherly grief, should have gone so far!" He was the paid counsel of Mrs Tilton, and was, no doubt, acting rightly for her, [illegible] would tell. That was the spirit of the gentleman, and it would show itself whether he was acting as an ex parte counsel or not. It was an infamy and a shame for him to lift the pall over his daughter's face and then to make his own partner John Winslow the man with whom he associated every day, [illegible] trying to [illegible] the truth.

The speaker then went on: "The letter very [illegible] closes with a strain of piety preaching. 'You have been too long and too well known in the best circles and the best Christian society of Brooklyn to make it necessary to vindicate yourself here.' Again, addressing this Joan of Arc of Brooklyn: 'I venture the opinion that before this painful controversy ends, your truthfulness and Christian sincerity will be recognized by all the world. You are properly cared for the good name and fame of the Congregational church, but the [illegible] must now take care of itself. It must determine for itself whether its members can be driven from its pale without a hearing and a trial after they had strayed away for years, and whether iniquity can be so securely [illegible] within its walls that inquiry cannot [illegible] forth to the light of day.' Inquiry is welcome to drag forth what it can. Mr Van Cott speaks of unrevealed testimony. [illegible]," said the speaker, "there is no doubt plenty of testimony in [illegible] from which the other was taken; but there is no evidence that Congregationalism itself is now on trial as the letter stated," and he was willing to step aside and let something else be tried. The questions now on trial were these, whether [illegible] churches may interfere with the discipline of another, whether they may violate the [illegible] of neighboring churches, and whether they may act uncharitably and insincerely and [illegible] an ex parte council to ratify their [illegible]. It was not a trial with any doubt in his [illegible] to the issue. Councils might die, but the Congregational church would live, he thought, until the millennium.

When Beecher had concluded, Shearman offered the following resolution: Resolved, That the committee on the advisory council be authorized to amend the letter missive for that council by omitting such portions thereof as they may deem no longer necessary. Unanimously adopted, and the meeting adjourned till Friday evening.

Maine Temperance Convention.

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 21.—At the State Temperance Convention, yesterday, Gov. Dingley reported resolutions, which were adopted, setting forth that the present reform movement is one of more powerful agencies to promote temperance, and making an appeal to the State to support it and asserting that total abstinence and the prohibition of the liquor traffic is the only basis for substantial progress in the temperance cause.

Compromise with Creditors.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The creditors of D. & P. Lawrence, stationers, Maiden Lane, have agreed upon a settlement on the basis of 50 cents on the dollar, in five payments at six, twelve, eighteen, twenty-four and thirty months from Feb. 1st, with interest. The liabilities of the firm were $224,[illegible]; assets, $150,000.

Suicide.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 21.—W. C. Perry, 60 years of age, while laboring under temporary aberration of mind, committed suicide this morning by severing the jugular vein with a razor.

Gone into Bankruptcy.

The Southwest Car Co., of this city, filed its petition in bankruptcy last evening. Those connected with the company claim the assets will more than cover the liabilities.

Money and Stocks.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Gold 13; money 3; governments and stocks active and strong. W. U. [illegible]; quicksilver, 17½; Mariposa, 8; Wells Fargo [illegible]; N. Y. C. 111⅞; Erie, 16⅞; Panama, 132; Union Pacific, 68⅞; do bonds 103, Central bonds 105.

[illegible] the Rowing Regatta Deferred.

Cambridge will not decide its connection with the American Centennial rowing regatta until a special assembly of students takes place, when the matter will be considered by the captains of the various boat clubs.

Criminal Hanged.

CAIRO, Ills., Jan. 21.—Marshall J. Crain was hanged at Marion, Williamson county, at 1 o'clock to-day in the presence of a crowd of about 2,500 people, confessing that he murdered Sydney and Spence, and acknowledging the justice of his sentence.

Stuck in the Snow.

GREEN RIVER, Wy., Jan. 21.—The passenger train bound east, due here at 7:45 last night, is stuck in the snow between Bryan and here. A passenger and six freight trains are lying here, bound west. Nothing has been done to clear the track yet. Still snowing.

Kansas Legislature.

TOPEKA, Ks., Jan. 21.—In the Senate to-day, the [illegible] was spent in discussing a resolution asking Congress to grant the right of way through the Indian Territory to the railroad, which was finally referred to the railroad committee. A memorial to Congress asking that body to declare forfeited all lands granted to the Lawrence, Leavenworth and Gulf Railroad, in accordance with the original grant, to all them, was passed.

Reduction of Railway Charges.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—The railroads leading west to-day reduced the rates of first class tickets to Denver from $67 to $[illegible].

WASHINGTON CITY.

Spaulding's Navy Court Martial.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The detail for the naval court martial to try Paymaster Spaulding is not yet completed, though it is decided that Rear Admiral John Rodgers will be president of the court, which will meet at Mare Island navy yard on Feb. 1[illegible]th.

The Texas Pacific.

Scott's friends express great satisfaction with the prospects for the Texas Pacific bill, and say the majority of the House committee concede to them the advantage, in last night's argumentative contest with Huntington. The San Diego people here feel grieved at what they term a fling made by the [illegible] at their town in his remarks before the committee. Felsenheld and Gov. Brown of Tennessee will address the committee next Wednesday, when the argument will be closed.

Abuses in Postal Affairs.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—A Washington special says among the points brought to the attention of sub-commissioner Miller on postal affairs is the dubious practice, running back about seven years, permitting mail agents to draw a salary from the Government and to charge traveling expenses when they do not raise their hands in the public service outside of their offices. The salaries of the agents of the department range from $2,400 to $3,000 a year. Besides this they are allowed under the law $1 per day when en route. It is found, however, that in the face of the law, bills for traveling expenses are annually allowed men who never stir from their desks in Washington. When cases of this sort reach to the hundreds as the records show they do, the loss to the Government can be estimated. Postmaster General Jewell admits the practice and admits that an opinion of the Attorney General forbids it, but he felt constrained to continue it because it had been sustained by his predecessor.

Railroad Lands.

Mr. Phillips, of Kansas, was before the House committee on public lands yesterday, pressing his bill making the Pacific railways, the Omaha branch, Kansas Pacific branch and central branch from Atchison, pay tax on their 50,000 acres of land which they have eluded heretofore by neglect to pay the costs of the survey, the selection and conveyancing. It is the same bill which passed the last House, but in the Senate was referred to Stewart's committee and there met its death for that Congress. There is but little doubt that the committee will report it and that the House will pass it.

Morton's Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The Senate committee on privileges and elections to-day considered Morton's bill to provide for counting the votes for President and Vice President. No conclusion was reached, but the opinion of the majority of the committee seemed to be that the pending discussion in the Senate on the abolition of the 22d joint rule, renders it unnecessary to press Morton's bill at present. The committee subsequently took up Morton's resolution providing for the investigation of the late Mississippi election. A long political discussion of a general character occurred, and considerable opposition to the resolution was developed.

District of Columbia 3-65 Bonds.

The House committee on appropriations has unanimously decided to report adversely on the bill appropriating $222,757 to pay the interest on the 3-65 District of Columbia bonds, upon the ground that Congress is bound to the extent only that the interest shall be paid, and that as $390,000 of the sum appropriated remain in the district treasury, a part of this should be applied to the payment of interest, and that, hereafter, the interest should be paid from the district currency receipts.

Malt.

The committee of ways and means gave a hearing this morning to a deputation from the United States Brewers Association, in favor of the passage of the bill, introduced by Kehr, of Missouri, to abolish the rule of the Internal Revenue Department, fixing 2½ bushels of malt as the maximum quantity allowed for the production of a 31 gallon barrel of beer or ale, and to make assessments where the brewer's returns show an excess of malt over the quantity of beer produced. The officers from the Internal Revenue Department, present, assented to the proposition of the brewers.

Cabinet Session on Cuba.

The Cabinet session to-day lasted nearly 2 hours. The Cuban question was the subject of discussion, but its consideration was not attended by any circumstance of unusual importance. The Cuban correspondence shows that the last letter of Mr Fish to Mr Cushing was dated November 5th. Reviewing the situation he says: "It is now the desire of this Government to satisfactorily adjust all questions and in this desire we have been patient almost to the limits of endurance. He insists that Spain shall bring Gen. Burriel to trial in accordance with the protocol; that, in reference to all pending questions, the relations with Spain are endangered by delay, and that, as to all, equally, that the Spanish Government should be informed that the maintenance of good relations with this government depends on an early satisfactory and conclusive adjustment. A telegram from Cushing, Nov. 16th, says: "The Spanish Government repeats its assurance of the trial of Burriel."

Fraudulently Stamped Bills.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—A number of bills bearing the impress of a fraudulent stamp have been discovered in the Postoffice department, over one hundred having been recognized by the engraver of the original stamp, and other experts. The bills so found are mainly in Tennessee, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Visit to the President.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The memorial committee appointed by the recent National Convention held in St. Louis, waited upon the President this afternoon. The committee was represented by the following gentlemen: Hon. R. W. Thompson, Indiana; Hon. Stanley Matthews, Ohio; Hon. J. H. Kennard, Louisiana; Col. Johnson, North Carolina; D. Folsonheld, California; Hon. A. C. Clapton, Texas; Hon. C. K. Marshall, Mississippi, and Mr. D. H. McAdams, St. Louis, representing Gov. Broadhead, chairman of the committee, who was unavoidably absent. Mr. Thompson addressed the President in behalf of the committee. Referring to the recent convention held in aid of the Texas Pacific railroad, by whose direction the committee appeared to present an account of the action of that body, he briefly reviewed the facts that give the enterprise a national importance, apart from the interest of any particular section, and especially in reference to the development of the interior of the continent. The President replied that he had seen the proceedings of the convention and as the matter was in the hands of Congress he did not desire to express any opinion upon the pending measure, but the building of a railroad across the continent by the route proposed was a work of great importance, particularly as it afforded a competing line to the road now in existence and would secure to the country cheaper rates. He did not know what Congress would do, but he hoped the road would be built. Mr. Thompson then presented the President with a handsomely engrossed copy of the resolutions and a printed copy of the proceedings, when the committee withdrew.

Preparations for Garrisoning Eszekod.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—A Hungarian journal states that preparations are making at Eszekod, a fortified town on the river Drave, for a garrison of 30,000 men.

Gambetta Grumbling.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—A correspondent of the Daily News reports that M. Gambetta, privately receiving a delegation at Aix, complained that he was debarred of a most elementary right, that of addressing electors on the eve of an election. He added: "Doubtless the public condemns the government's policy, but the certainty of the government's overthrow does not console me for the humiliation of thinking that such official outrages are possible only in France."

England Adheres to the Austrian Note.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—Le Temps says, according to private information from London, England adheres to the Austrian note.

The British Anti-Slavery Society and the American Circular Note.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The Anti-Slavery society have presented an address to Lord Derby on the subject of the American circular note, in which they remind him that in June last he said the British government sympathized with the object of those proposals and that England should endeavor, in conjunction with the United States, to obtain a settlement of the Cuban difficulty by friendly mediation. They now earnestly commend the question in its present critical aspect to his management. Lord Derby replied that the government would give the question the attention which its importance deserved. The society say they have reliable information that Spain is willing to place Cuba in the same relations as Canada occupies toward England, on condition that slavery be retained. They point out that in view of the recent American circular the obstacle no longer exists which was advanced by Lord Derby last year, that England's interference on the Cuban question would cause jealousy in the United States.

The Times in Favor of a Common Unit of Money.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The Times, which yesterday, in a financial article, rejected Senator Sherman's proposition looking to a common unit for money and accounts for the United States and Great Britain, to-day editorially approves the measure. It says: "America, in returning to specie payments, will almost immediately enter upon a new phase of monetary development. Therefore, the change in the American standard of value will involve no serious shock to social and commercial arrangements, such as would ensue upon an alteration in the value of the British sovereign. The proposition opens no less a prospect than the establishment of a common monetary system for all English speaking people, who, by the end of this century, will probably rule or influence the people of the greater part of the earth's surface and monopolize an even larger share of its commerce."

Address from Victor Hugo.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—Victor Hugo issued an address to the senatorial delegates for Paris and France, in which he asks them to found a democracy which shall end foreign war by arbitration, civil war by amnesty, and distress by education.

Spanish Elections.

MADRID, Jan. 20.—Elections for members of the Cortes proceed in an orderly manner throughout Spain. The Epoca, in an editorial on the financial situation, urges the ministry to organize the national finances on a sound basis and restrict the public expenditures as much as possible.

SUBSTITUTE FOR THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC BILL.

Sherman, from the committee on finance, reported a substitute for the Senate bill, to provide for a commission on the subject of alcoholic liquor traffic; placed on the calendar.

Frelinghuysen moved that when the Senate adjourn to-day, it adjourn to meet on Monday next. Adopted.

After the morning hour Boutwell announced the death of Vice President Wilson, and delivered a graceful eulogy, which he closed by offering the usual resolutions of respect.

Messrs. Cragin, Cameron of Pennsylvania, Morrill, Stevenson, Merton and Dawes made addresses, when the resolutions were adopted, and the Senate adjourned.

House.

BILL FOR THE BENEFIT OF JUDGE W. M'CANDLESS.

Knott, from the judiciary committee, reported a bill for the retirement, on full pay, of Judge Wilson McCandless, of the western district of Pennsylvania, in consequence of physical disabilities, notwithstanding he has not attained the age of 70 years.

Lawrence opposed the bill as establishing a dangerous precedent.

Knott remarked that a few years ago Congress deemed it wise to make a provision that United States judges, on reaching the age of 70 years, might retire on their pay, after having served ten years. If that law was just and wise, it was impossible for him to conceive the injustice or unwisdom of passing this bill for the relief of a faithful servant, who had served as judge for twenty years, who lacked but two or three years of the necessary age, and whose physical disabilities would prevent his longer occupation of the bench with justice to the public interest. As to the propriety of a civil pension list, his (the Democratic) side of the House was not responsible for it. It was on the statute book now, and the present bill was simply to extend its benefits to one who was certainly entitled to it, if any one was.

Holman said no act had ever passed Congress which was so much against the spirit and intent of American institutions as the act to pension judges. In the early days of the republic such legislation would have been deemed simply impossible. The original law was extremely liberal and he objected to the extension of the provisions of that unwise measure beyond its original scope.

The passage of the bill was advocated by Frye, Hopkins and Conger. The last called attention to the fact that under the existing law, this judge was not compelled either to resign or to retire and there was no one to perform the duties of the office.

The bill passed—yeas 142, nays 100.

The House then took action on the usual resolutions in honor of the memory of the late Vice President Wilson.

Holman asked unanimous consent to extend the privilege of the floor to the delegation of Indiana editors during the eulogies to be pronounced; adopted.

The indications are that Lerdo will be re-elected. His most formidable competitor is Porfirio Diaz.

PIONEER ASSOCIATION.

The board of managers of the Oregon Pioneer Association met at Salem, on the 20th of January, in the Secretary of State's office, and was called to order by Hon. J. W. Grim.

The following gentlemen were present: J. W. Grim, President; E. N. Cooke, Vice President; W. J. Herren; J. Henry Brown, Secretary; W. H. Rees, Corresponding Secretary; Hon. F. X. Mathieu, ex President.

Hon. S. F. Chadwick moved that the next reunion be held at the grounds of the Oregon State Agricultural Society, near Salem, as that was the only proffer made to the board of managers; carried.

On motion of W. J. Herren, the following gentlemen were appointed a committee on printing: Hon. E. N. Cooke, Hon. S. F. Chadwick, Hon. John Minto, and William H. Rees, Esq.

A telegram to the secretary, from A. P. Ankeny, was read resigning as one of the directors.

On motion, the resignation was accepted, and Joseph Watt, of Yamhill county, was elected to fill the vacancy.

On motion Rev. J. H. Wilbur was elected chaplain, and Rev. W. H. Roberts as alternate.

Hon. Jesse Applegate was chosen to deliver the annual address at the reunion, and Judge R. P. Boise as alternate.

On motion a committee of five ladies was appointed to select a lady to deliver or read an address at the next reunion, and report to the secretary by the 22d of February next. Mrs. J. F. Miller, Mrs. B. A. Clarke, Mrs. Warner Breyman, Mrs. I. N. Gilbert and Mrs. J. H. Moores were selected said committee.

Mr. Thomas Shaw was chosen chief marshal, and Col. T. R. Cornelius and R. C. Geer, aids.

The following committee of arrangements was appointed: John F. Miller, Jos. Holman, John W. Minto, Mrs. B. H. Bowman, Mrs. Mary Minto, Mrs. J. F. Miller, Mrs. B. A. Clarke, Miss Clara Watt and Miss Marie Smith.

Committee of arrangements was instructed to attend to invited guests.

Hon. John Minto was invited to deliver an address and call the roll of 1841.

Mrs. F. F. Victor was invited to write a biography of Col. Jos. L. Meek and publish it in the transactions of the association.

Moved and carried that when the board adjourns it is to meet on the first Thursday of February next.

Moved and carried that the committee on printing have 2,000 copies of the transactions printed immediately.

Moved that the committee of arrangements examine the banners and have them retouched if found necessary.

On motion, board adjourned until May 1, 1876.

THE TERRITORIES.

Snow fell to the depth of four inches at Olympia on the night of the 19th.

Snohomish county in 1862, according to a census taken at that time, contained a white population of 44 persons—old men.

Three hundred and eight vessels of all descriptions passed New Dungeness lighthouse during the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1875.

The first number of the Snohomish Star, a new weekly paper published by Eldridge Morse at Snohomish City, W. T., has reached us.

The laws of the last session of the Washington Territory legislature are ready for distribution. The volume contains over 300 pages.

Mr. E. L. Willey, of Mason county, W. T., has been appointed trustee of the Washington insane hospital, in place of Mr. Brazee, resigned.

Mr. Stevens, telegraph repairer, informs the Echo that he has repaired over two hundred breaks on the line between Olympia and Tenino this winter.

Fall City, King county, W. T., has one store, postoffice, good school, and a social little community most of whom express themselves well satisfied with making the change from a cold country to a more genial clime. "We have a small settlement of Norwegians from Chicago settling on the river. They are farmers, carpenters, blacksmiths, joiners, etc., and they are 'on the work,'—just such a class as the country needs."

U. P. Train Through the Snow.

SALT LAKE, Jan. 21.—The Union Pacific express train from the East to-day got through the snow between Green river and Evanston five and a half hours late, and the track is now reported clear.

THE CUBAN QUESTION.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

Diplomatic Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21, 1876.

The President to-day enclosed the letter of Mr. Fish and copies of correspondence to the House of Representatives in response to a resolution of that body calling for copies of correspondence in relation to the Cuban question. The documents are voluminous and comprise much that has heretofore been published.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, Nov. 5, 1875.

CALEB CUSHING—Sir: Pursuant to the intimation conveyed in my 212, I deem it necessary to recur to the general question of our relations with Spain and to consider the progress which has been made in disposing of the outstanding questions which for some time past, have seriously threatened the relations of the two countries. At the time of your departure for Madrid, apart from the general question of the unsatisfactory condition of affairs in Cuba and the failure to suppress the revolution, several prominent questions remained unadjusted, the settlement of which were deemed necessary before any satisfactory relations with Spain could be established or maintained. Upon all of these you were instructed that the most prominent among them were questions arising from the embargo and the confiscation of estates of American citizens in Cuba, those relating to the trial of American citizens in that Island in violation of the treaty, of the obligations and claims arising out of the capture of the Virginius, including the trial and punishment of Gen. Burriel. After the expiration of more than 18 months, it seems advisable to examine what progress has been made, and consider our present relations with Spain in reference to the arbitrary seizure and withholding of the estates and property of citizens of the United States in Cuba, under proceedings of confiscation or embargo so called. A separate instruction was addressed to you under the date of February 6th, prior to your departure for your post. I referred therein to the general facts surrounding these cases, to the arbitrary action of authorities by which the property of American citizens had been seized in violation of the treaty provisions, in the absence of judicial proceedings, without hearing and under such circumstances as to call for a vigorous protest and demands on behalf of the government. The general facts surrounding these cases are well known. It is not pretended, so far as I am aware, that any legal justification for these wrongs has been attempted on the part of the authorities of Spain, or that these proceedings in Cuba are defended or upheld. On the contrary, pursuant to the decree issued by the government on the 12th of July, 1873, the illegality and indefensible character of these acts were admitted, and the embargoes were ordered to be removed and the property restored. This decree was at first received in Cuba with calm indifference, not even published or adverted to, and the proceedings of the authorities were in no notable respect changed thereby. At the time of the visit of Senor Solory Polo, minister of Ultramar, the decree was in some instances recognized, and some significant steps were taken in individual cases to comply therewith. In general, however, it was claimed either that incumbrances existed making a compliance therewith impossible, or that the delivery was offered burdened by leases or incumbrances, and coupled with unfair conditions or demands, or, delivery was avoided on the ground that the particular property was confiscated, not embargoed. In fact, the decree was treated in general, with supreme indifference. You were informed that the President, while not disposed to question the willingness of the authorities in Spain, in justice to this government and her citizens expected that means would be found to compel the agents in Cuba to obey the orders of the supreme government. Such was the condition of the question at the date of your departure. Numbers of American citizens had, at this time, been deprived of their property, and were anxiously awaiting the performance of promises and assurances which had been given by the Spanish government. In spite of all the efforts which you have made, intelligent and energetic as they have been, no effectual result has been accomplished. The kindred treaty question, in reference to the trial of citizens of the United States in Cuba by court martial, and the arrest and punishment of our citizens without trial, in that island, in violation of the provisions of the treaty of 1795, is substantially in the same position. This government, prior to your appointment, had unfortunately been compelled to interfere in behalf of its citizens on several occasions, where the authorities in Cuba had entirely disregarded not only the provisions of neutrality, but the rules of civilized warfare in cases of embargo and confiscation. Not only have wrongs long since been done, but continuing and repeated wrongs are daily inflicted. The authorities of Spain in Cuba during all this time, have been using the revenues of the confiscated or embargoed estates, appropriating much of the property itself, and in some cases, executing long leases or actually making sales, either on the allegation that taxes were due, or without any excuse whatever. In cases of arrest and punishment citizens of the United States, in like manner have undergone punishment, because the authorities of Spain do not meet the issue and decide the question. Turning to the question which arose from the capture of the Virginius and the executions which followed, no extended reference is required. The particulars of the delivery of the vessel to this government and the payment, to both Great Britain and the United States, of considerable sums as compensation for the acts of the authorities in ordering the execution of 53 passengers and crew, under circumstances of peculiar brutality, have passed into history. So far as payment of money can atone for the execution of these unprotected prisoners that has been accomplished. The higher and more imperative duty which the Government of Spain assumed by the protocol of November 1873, namely, to bring to justice General Burriel and the other principal offenders in this tragedy, has been evaded and entirely neglected. Having made this neglect the subject of a separate instruction under this date, I abstain from further reference. In February 1874 in the first instruction addressed to you on general matters pertaining to your mission I referred at length to the views entertained by the President and to the position of this Government. It was then more than five years since an organized insurrection had broken out, which the Government of Spain had been entirely unable to suppress. At that time the firm conviction of the President was announced that whatever might be the vicissitudes of the struggle, whatever efforts might be put forth by the Spanish power in Cuba no doubt could be entertained that the final issue of the conflict would be to break the bonds which attached Cuba as a colony to Spain. While remembering and observing the duties which this Government as one of the family of nations, owes to another member by public law, treaties, or particular statutes of the United States, it would be idle to attempt to conceal the interest and sympathy with which Americans in the United States regard any attempt of a numerous people on this continent to be relieved of the ties which hold them in a position of colonial subjection to a distant power and to assume independence and the right of self control, which natural right and the spirit of the age accord to them. When, moreover, this struggle has been in progress on our very borders from its commencement, has involved the property interests of the citizens of the United States, has disturbed our tranquility and commerce, has called upon the United States not unfrequently to witness the barbarous violations of the rules of civilized warfare and compelled us for sake of humanity to raise our voice by way of protest and when more than all we see only in the contest the final struggle in this hemisphere between slavery and freedom, it would be strange, indeed, if the government and people of this country failed at any time to take peculiar interest in the termination of such a contest. In this early instruction was expressed the sincere and unselfish hope of the President that the government of Spain would seek some honorable and satisfactory adjustment, based upon emancipation and self government, which would restore peace and afford a prospect of a return of prosperity to Cuba. Almost two years have passed since those instructions were issued and those strong hopes expressed and it would appear that the situation has in no respect improved. The horrors of war have in no perceptible manner abated. The inconveniences and injuries which we then suffered have remained and others have been added. The ravages of war have touched new parts of the Island and well nigh ruined its financial and agricultural system and its relations to the commerce of the world. No effective steps have been taken to establish reforms or remedy abuses, and the effort to suppress the insurrection by force alone has been a complete failure. The material interests of trade and commerce are impaired to a degree which calls for remonstrance, if not for another line of conduct on the part of all commercial nations. Whether it be from the severity and inhumanity with which the effort has been made to suppress the insurrection and from the supposed justification of retaliation for violations of rules of civilized warfare or by other violations and by acts of barbarism, of incendiarism and outrage, the world is witnessing on the part of the insurgents whom Spain still claims as subjects and for whose acts if subjects Spain must be held accountable in the judgment of the world, a warfare not of legitimate strife of relative force and strength, but of pillage and incendiarism, the burning of estates and of sugar mills and the destruction of the means of production and wealth of the Island. The United States purchases more largely than any other people of the productions of the Island of Cuba and therefore more than any other for this reason, and stand next by reason of its immediate neighborhood, is interested in the arrest of the system of wanton destruction which disgraces the age and affects every commercial people on the globe. Under these circumstances and in view of the fact that Spain has rejected all suggestions or offers of reform or of offers of mediation, made by this government and has refused all measures looking to reconciliation except on terms which make reconciliation an impossibility, the difficulty of the situation becomes increased. When, however, in addition to these general causes of difficulty, we find the Spanish Government neglectful also of obligations, of treaties and solemn compacts and unwilling to afford any redress for long continued and well founded wrongs suffered by our citizens it becomes a serious question how long this condition of things can or should be allowed to exist and compels us to inquire whether the point has not been reached where longer endurance ceases to be possible.

During all this time, and under these aggravated circumstances this government has not failed to perform her obligations to Spain as scrupulously as toward other nations. In fact it might be said we have not only been long suffering because of the embarrassments surrounding the Spanish government, but particularly careful to give no occasion for complaint. For the same reason I regret to say that the authorities of Spain have not at all times appreciated our intentions or our purposes in these respects, and while insisting that war does not exist in Cuba, that no rights as belligerents, should be accorded to the insurrectionists, have at the same time demanded for themselves all the rights and privileges which flow from actual and acknowledged war. It will be apparent that such a state of things cannot continue. It is also truly necessary for the maintenance of our relations with Spain, even on their present footing, that our just demands for the return to the citizens of the United States of their estates in Cuba, unincumbered and for securing to them trial for offenses, according to treaty provisions and all other rights guaranteed by treaty and by public law, should be complied with. Whether the Spanish government, appreciating the forbearance of this country will speedily and satisfactorily adjust these pending questions not by the issue of implied orders or decrees, without force or effect in Cuba, but by comprehensive and firm measures which shall everywhere be respected, I anxiously await further intelligence. Apart from these particular questions, in opinion of the President the time has arrived when the interests of this country, the preservation of its commerce, and the instincts of humanity alike demand that some speedy and satisfactory ending be made of the strife that is devastating Cuba. The disastrous conflict of more than seven years' duration, has demonstrated the inability of Spain to maintain the peace of the island lying at our door. Desolation and destruction of life and property have been the only results of this conflict. The United States sympathizes for that this inability results, in a large degree, from the unhappy condition of Spain at home, and to some extent from distractions which are dividing her people; but the facts still remain. Added to this are the large expanse of ocean separating the peninsula from the Island, and want of harmony and personal sympathy between the inhabitants of the home government and those of the colony. In addition to all this, it cannot be a question that the continued maintenance, in the face of decrees and enactments to the contrary, of the compulsory system of slave labor is a source of disquiet and of excitement to a large class in the Island, as also in the United States, which the government of Spain has led the United States by very distinct assurances to expect should be removed, and which the enlightened Christianity of the age condemns. The contest and disorder in Cuba affect the United States directly and injuriously by the presence in this country of the partisans of the revolt, who have fled hitherto in consequence of proximity of territory as to a political asylum and who by their plottings are disturbers of the public peace. The United States has exerted itself to the utmost for seven years to repress unlawful acts on the part of these self exiled subjects of Spain, relying on the promises of Spain to pacify the island. Seven years of strain on the powers of the government to fulfill that most exacting demand which a government can make under the doctrine of the claim of international obligation upon another have not witnessed the much hoped for pacification. The United States feels itself entitled to be relieved of this strain. The severe measures, injurious to the United States and often in conflict with public law, which the colonial officers have taken to subdue the insurrection, in deference to and often as offensive assaults upon the just susceptibilities of the people of the United States and their government which have characterized that portion of the peninsula. The population of Havana, which has sustained and upheld it, it has not controlled successive Governors General, and which has led to a disregard of orders and decrees, which more enlarged wisdom and more friendly councils of the home government had enacted. The cruelties, inhumanity, which have characterized the contest, both on the part of the colonial governors of the Island for seven years, and the destruction of valuable property and industries by arson and pillage, which Spain appears unable, however desirous, to prevent and stop in an island, three thousand miles distant from her shores, but lying within sight of our coast, with which trade and constant intercourse are unavoidable, are causes of annoyance and injury to the United States, which the people cannot be expected to tolerate without an assured prospect of their termination. The United States has more than once been solicited by the insurgents to extend to them its aid; but it has for years hitherto, resisted such solicitations and has endeavored by a tender of its good offices in the way of mediation, advice and remonstrance to bring to an end the great evil which has pressed upon the interests both of the Government and the people of the United States, and also upon the commercial interests of other nations, as sincere friendship for Spain and for her people, whether peninsula or insular, and equally sincere reluctance to adopt any measures which might injure or humble the ancient ally of the United States has characterized the conduct of this Government in every step during the several distressing years, and the President is still animated by the same feeling and desires above all things to aid her and her people to enter and move upon the path of safety and repose. The President, in 1869, tendered the good offices of the United States for the purpose of bringing to a close the civil war in Cuba. The offer was made delicately, in good faith, and in friendship to both parties to the contest. General Prim, as representative of the Spanish Government, while recognizing the good faith and friendship with which the offer was made, replied: "We can better proceed in the present situation of things without even this friendly intervention. The time will come when the good offices of the United States will be not only useful but indispensable in fixing arrangements between Spain and Cuba. We will ascertain the form in which they can be employed and will confidently count upon your assistance." The United States replied that its good offices for that object would be at any time at the service of the parties to the conflict. This government has ever since been ready thus to aid in restoring peace and quiet. The government of the United States has heretofore given expression to no policy in reference to the insurgents in Cuba, because it has honestly and sincerely hoped that no declaration of policy on its part would be required. The President feels that longer reticence would be inconsistent with the interest of both governments. Our relations with Spain are in that critical position that another seizure similar to that of the Virginius, other executions of citizens of the United States, other wrongs of less objectionable character even than many which have already been suffered by our citizens with simple remonstrance, or, possibly, even some new act of exceptionable severity in Cuba, may suddenly produce a feeling and excitement which might force an event which this government anxiously desires to avoid. The President hopes Spain may adopt measures looking to reconciliation and a speedy restoration of peace, and the organization of a stable and satisfactory system of government in the Island of Cuba. In the absence of any prospect of a termination of the war, or of any change in the manner in which it has been conducted thus far, he feels the time is at hand when it may be the duty of other governments to intervene solely with the view of bringing to an end the disastrous and destructive conflicts, and of restoring peace in the Island of Cuba. No government is more deeply interested in the words or the actions of the administration of this Island, than is that of the United States, and none has suffered as has the United States from the condition which has obtained there during the past six or seven years. He will, therefore, feel it his duty at an early day to submit that the subject in this light and accompanied by an expression of views also will be presented for the consideration of Congress. This conclusion is reached with reluctance and regret. It is reached after every other expedient has been attempted and proved a failure, and in the firm conviction that the period has arrived when no other course remains for this Government. It is believed to be a just and friendly act to frankly communicate this conclusion to the Spanish government. You will therefore take an early occasion thus to inform that government. In making this communication, it is the earnest desire of the President to impress upon the authorities the continued friendly disposition of this government and that it has no ulterior selfish objects in view and no desire to become a party in the conflict. But it is moved solely by imperative necessities by a proper regard to its own protection and its own interests and the interests of humanity, and as we firmly believe by the ultimate interest of Spain itself. Informing the Spanish government of these conclusions pursuant hereto you are authorized to read this instruction to the Minister of State or to state the substance and purport thereof as you may deem most advisable. You will of course keep me advised by telegraph and by post of your proceedings pursuant to this instruction.

A Syrian convert to Christianity was urged by his employer to work on Sunday, but he declined. "But," said the master, "doth not your bible say that if a man has an ox or an ass that falls into a pit on the Sabbath day, he may pull him out?" "Yes," answered Havop, "but if the ass has the habit of falling into the same pit every Sabbath day, then the man should either fill up the pit or sell that ass."

Mr. Joshua Montgomery Sears, a student in Yale college, attained his majority on Christmas day, and with it stepped into the possession of a not little property valued at $9,000,000. His parents died in his infancy, and the property has been held in trust by three trustees. About one-half of the property consists of real estate in Boston.

Ex-Senator Harlan—His Son Dies.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20.—James Harlan, ex-Secretary of the Interior, arrived here Tuesday evening, accompanied by his wife, in consequence of a telegram announcing the dangerous illness of their only son, at the Palace Hotel. Young Harlan died yesterday. He came here a short time ago for his health. His remains will be taken East for interment.

San Francisco Mercantile Library.

At the Mercantile Library meeting this evening the reports of the officers were read, showing the institution in a prosperous condition.

Bolander Investigation Case.

The special committee of the Board of Education to investigate the charges preferred against Prof. Bolander, superintendent of city schools, by Ott, deputy clerk of the board, met this evening. The substance of the charges was to the effect that Bolander had issued certificates to teachers in an irregular and illegal manner. The committee expressed the opinion that the offenses would prove to be merely technical, but deferred action until to-morrow, when testimony will be taken. It is said by some that Ott preferred the charges through spite at Bolander's refusal to appoint him secretary of the board.

City Charter Amendments.

The board of supervisors are in session this evening, as a committee of the whole, to consider the amended city charter. The meeting promises to be protracted. The new charter forms a huge volume. One of the provisions demanding special attention is the amendment to create two members of the board of supervisors police commissioners, instead of the mayor, chief of police and the police judge, as heretofore. It is considered by many as a measure looking to place the police force almost entirely in the hands of the mayor, and, coupled with the amendment to raise the force to 200 men, is calculated to greatly increase the mayor's patronage. The proposition will probably give rise to considerable opposition.

The cold rain which has been falling the greater portion of the day has ceased, and it is now clear with a west wind.

Antioch Distillery Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21.—The crooked whisky case is still on trial in the U. S. district court. A number of revenue store keepers who have been on duty at the Antioch distillery, were placed on the stand by the defense to-day, all swearing they never saw any fraudulent practices on the part of the proprietors.

The Rosenblatt Habeas Corpus Case.

Sampson Rosenblatt's habeas corpus case came up in the police court this morning. On motion of the district attorney it was continued until Thursday next. A telegram has been received from New York that an officer is on the way from there with a requisition, based on indictments there. Bail has been raised to $85,000, in default of which Rosenblatt is confined in the city prison.

A Letter from H. C. Kibbe.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21.—In a letter left by H. C. Kibbe to Col. Fry, the deceased confesses the defalcation and describes the desperate straits to which he has been driven to raise the necessary funds to float along with the tide of speculation. In a letter to W. H. L. Barnes, the writer asks him, as commander of the Masonic Commandery, to which he (Kibbe) belonged, to help his orphan children. He also enclosed in a letter to Mr. Barnes a note to Charles Neal, asking that gentleman to aid his children. Mr. Neal is reminded in a note that he (Kibbe) assisted in placing him on the highway to wealth and prosperity and begs therefore that he (Neal) will not forget his children.

The Spalding Court Martial.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21.—The organization of the court martial to try Pay Inspector Spalding for complicity in the Pioney frauds will not take place until the arrival of the flagship Pensacola, as Admiral Almy is to be president of the court. That vessel is expected here on or about the 1st of February. Admiral Rogers will appear as one of the principal witnesses against Spalding.

Pardon of Waddell.

The Pacific Mail Co. have succeeded in obtaining a pardon from the Hawaiian government for the piracy of James J. Waddell as commander of the cruiser Shenandoah, in the burning of the Hawaiian whaling bark in the Arctic Seas. This act of the Hawaiian government will compel it to protect Waddell, in case he ever enters the Hawaiian waters and is threatened with violence on account of that piratical proceeding.

Civil Rights Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21.—The prosecution was taken by surprise at some of the testimony adduced in the civil rights case of Green vs. Maguire, and Assistant U. S. Attorney Van Duzer is preparing papers to commence a similar action on behalf of another aggrieved party against the ticket seller and ticket taker of Maguire's new theater, by which means he hopes to get at the real merits of the case. There is a case now on the U. S. Circuit Court calendar, which will be tried as soon as the informer returns from Ogden, which differs from Green's case in this, that the ticket purchased by the colored man was an ordinary ticket for admission to a seat in the dress circle and not for a reserved seat.

H. C. Kibbe Found Dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21.—H. C. Kibbe, late Secretary of Belcher and other mining companies whose defalcations have been previously reported, was found dead in his bed yesterday morning, having shot himself in the head with a pistol. He left a number of open letters to his family and friends attributing his act to unsuccessful stock speculations. He also left letters to Col. Fry, President of Belcher and New York mining companies, and to W. H. L. Barnes, supposed to relate to matters of business.

Snow Storm.

SHASTA, Cal., Jan. 21.—Snow commenced falling here at 6 o'clock this evening and still continues with every indication of a huge old snow storm.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Jan. 21.—It commenced raining here early yesterday morning, continuing at intervals throughout the day and night, terminating this morning in a grand old fashioned snow storm that lasted for an hour or more completely covering the mountains and foot hills. It is now clearing off and growing warmer with fair prospects for more pleasant weather.

Unusual Weather.

SAN JOSE, Jan. 21.—The weather for the past two days has been very unusual for this section. Last evening we were treated to a genuine snow storm, covering the ground to the depth of a quarter of an inch. To-day at sunrise, the mountains and foot hills, on both sides of the valley, were completely covered with snow. To-day the wind blew very cold from the northwest. About noon, and again at 3 P. M., light showers of snow descended, melting as it fell. From an old resident, we learn that there has been nothing like the present spell of weather since the winter of 1848. At New Almaden and the town west of here, in the hills, the snow fell heavily. The sky is yet hazy and the weather cold. Three distinct shocks of an earthquake were felt in this city at 10 minutes before 5 o'clock this morning. The vibrations were from east to west.

Heavy Rain and Snow.

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 21.—Rain last night which continued at intervals all night. To-day there were occasional showers with strong variable winds. It is cloudy and cold to-night.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21.—It rained hard last night, and cleared up with showers through the day. About two inches of water fell yesterday, and to-day the weather is cold. Snow fell on board the Mohongo this morning while at sea off the coast. Three inches of snow covered the Southern Pacific R. R. track beyond San Fernando, in the direction of the tunnel.

Railway Meeting.

The railway meeting was hostile in tone towards the Southern Pacific and credits the Los Angeles and Independence railway with saving the people three hundred and fifty thousand dollars a year. The extension to Salt Lake was brought up, and correspondence from there had been opened by the committee, who reported that the plan developed was an issue of bonds upon the road already constructed, to be taken by the people and the funds so raised to be used in the construction. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the report of the committee be received, and that this meeting cordially endorse the railroad views of Senator Jones, and that the people of this city and county are prepared to cooperate with him in practically carrying out any feasible plan he may submit to us for extending the Los Angeles and Independence railroad.

Resolved, That we urge Senator Jones to use his utmost endeavors to place his plans in such shape as to organize the work of construction and extension as speedily as possible.

The San Joaquin Falling.

STOCKTON, Jan. 21.—The San Joaquin river is reported to be falling rapidly. The weather has been stormy and cold for the past four days, but cleared off to-day, the sun shining bright all day. The indications are that the storm has subsided for the present.

Wilcox Under Bonds.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 21.—The charge preferred against Assemblyman Wilcox for attempting to murder Fred W. Somers, correspondent of the Chronicle, was investigated this afternoon. After hearing the evidence in the case, the justice held the defendant to answer before the grand jury, and as it did not appear from medical testimony that there was any probability of Somers getting any worse he fixed the bail at $5,000.

Stock Run Off.

STANWIX, A. T., Jan. 21.—The day before yesterday, 7 men ran off 30 head of horses and mules from Agua Caliente ranch, while the herders were out after the stock. The robbers came from the west, and their tracks went north, which indicates they were Indians, instead of Mexicans, as at first supposed. A party of well-armed men went in pursuit and expect to overtake them near Eagle Tail tanks. Everything quiet here.

SHIPBUILDING IN OREGON

There is perhaps no State in the Union in which the business of shipbuilding, after it has been once established, could be more advantageously carried on than in Oregon. All or nearly all the raw materials are found or can be produced here in inexhaustible quantities and of the best quality. The yellow fir has been tested in the shipyards of France, Russia, England and the United States and determined to be one of the best kinds of timber in the world for shipbuilding. In buoyancy and elasticity it excels all others; in strength, tenacity and durability it equals the oak. This timber is abundant here and cheaper than timber of equal value in any part of the world. Iron of the finest quality is also abundant, and hemp can be produced in any quantity. The natural advantages of the State for establishing manufactories are also very great. At the Cascades of the Columbia, and particularly at Oregon City, are unrivalled opportunities for the employment of water power.

The only thing we lack is a large laboring class. The chief essentials for shipbuilding exist here in abundance, but labor is scarce and high. But, should the business of building ships once be established, the invariable law regulating supply and demand, would bring laborers in plenty, and the price of labor would find its level. If mechanics should learn that very much higher wages were paid here than in Maine or New York, they would soon flock here, provided they were assured that steady work would be found. The only reason why ship builders' wages are so high here now is, that there are only a few of them here, and they are enabled to keep up the prices. They are, too, obliged to ask high wages, for they are not certain of steady employment, and must charge enough for their labor not only to support themselves while working, but also when idle. If they could be sure of work all the time, they would feel no need of providing for a day of enforced idleness, and could work so cheaply, it being an undisputed maxim that steady work can be done for low wages while uncertain employment demands high pay. Hence it is evident, that, if the business should once be established and go steadily on, the wages of mechanics and also the cost of materials which would then be manufactured here, would be much less than now. This reduction in the cost of construction would add just so much to the profits of the capitalist building the ship. What that profit would be can be best ascertained by computing the cost of construction and considering her probable earnings, and in doing this it should be remembered that an Oregon ship, if built and launched at the proper season of the year, need not hoist her sails until she has her load of wheat on board and is ready to start on her voyage. There is scarcely another place in the world where ships can be built and loaded in the same port. Generally speaking, after a ship is launched she has to sail hundreds, or thousands of miles, to a distant port in search of a cargo. Ships coming here for grain have to sail thousands of miles in ballast, or with a mere nominal cargo, losing months of time. A ship built here, would take her cargo at once, and save all that expense and loss of time. All the profit arising from the carriage of grain and flour would come into the hands of our own people and not be sent abroad. What this profit is may be inferred, when it is remembered that the freight on wheat and flour to England amounts to about $18 per ton, and that during last year 75,602 tons of wheat and flour were shipped to Europe alone, besides a very large quantity to other countries. The whole of this freight—$1 360 836—goes out of the country except what is required for the ships' expenses in this port. If the ships were owned here, the whole of it, or nearly so, would be retained in the State to aid in the further development of its resources.

It may be added to these considerations that ships built of Oregon fir, according to the rules of the French Lloyds are rated A 1 for eleven years, being the longest time for which any ships are so rated.

A REVOLUTION IN TRADE

A glance at the statistics of our commerce with England during the year 1875 as compared with former years, reveals at once the fact, that our trade with that country is undergoing a great change. The exports from Great Britain to the United States are rapidly falling off, while exports from the United States to Great Britain are increasing. Some commodities which till recently could be laid down in this country from English manufactories cheaper than they could be produced here in spite of the duties are now produced in this country for the English market. It seems scarcely credible but it is true nevertheless that American pig iron has found during the last year a very considerable market in England. The same is true of woolen fabrics. While we still import certain qualities of woolens from England it is true also that a large amount of our goods goes to England and is worn there in preference to like goods from the home manufactories. It is stated in English papers that for common wear the American fabrics are cheaper, durability and price both considered, than English and that unless the English masters should devise some way to change the current of business in this respect the balance of trade in woolen fabrics will in a few years be in favor of America.

THE COMMON UNIT PROPOSITION

The financial editor of the London Times does not believe in the American idea of adopting a common unit for money accounts for all English speaking people, but the editor in chief takes the other side. The question is one on which "Doctors may honestly differ," but the argument appears to us to be pretty much all on the side of the common unit. The convenience of commerce and trade is the only thing to be consulted and that would certainly be subserved by having a unit common to both countries instead of having to go through the process of reducing pounds shillings and pence to dollars and cents or dollars and cents to pounds shillings and pence, in every business transaction between merchants of the two nations. There should be a common unit and that based upon a system of decimal multiples, so that the first process of computation would in all cases include everything in the case without any further conversion of one denomination into its equivalent in another. Whether our system of coinage or some other decimal system should be agreed on is a matter of no particular moment, as the inconvenience consequent upon the adoption of a different system based on the decimal principle would be but temporary. But the necessity of some common method of notation in our business transactions is becoming too apparent and pressing to need argument.

Mr Lane has introduced a bill in Congress for the appropriation of $25 000 for improving the navigation of the Yamhill. Whether he will be able to receive this appropriation is a matter upon which no very reliable conjecture can be made just now but it is certain that the expenditure of that amount on the Yamhill would produce as great benefits to the community immediately affected as the same expenditure in any other improvement for commercial purposes in the State. It appears strange that so little attention should have been paid to this much needed work heretofore by our members of Congress. The appropriation asked for is not large but it would do a great deal for one of the richest agricultural districts in the State.

The claim of the District of Columbia for reimbursement of money paid for the grading and paving of streets for Congressmen to walk and drive over, does not go. The ingratitude of republics finds a strong example in this case. Here are nearly three hundred M Cs daily walking and riding over the smoothest of asphaltum and the costliest of Belgian blocks laid down for them by the kind hearted Shepherd and his distinguished compatriots of the late district government and yet when these M Cs are asked to come out with enough of the peoples money to pay for the luxury they are parsimonious enough to refuse. Out upon such meanness.

The New York Herald is unkind enough to say that if the rumors of disagreement between President Grant and Secretary Bristow should prove true and if the matter should go to the extent of an open rupture, Bristow would have the precedent established by Grant during Johnson's administration for refusing to retire from the office.

The Independents of Polk county are early in the field. See their call for county convention in another column.

The Democratic State Central Committee will meet at Portland on the 10th of February.

A CORRECTION

The following which we clip from the Salem Mercury, explains itself:

Ed Mercury: In the last issue of your paper your Portland correspondent "Casterlie," referring to the recent bankrupt proceedings in the matter of the Bulletin newspaper in the U S District Court makes the following utterly false statement, to wit: "During the examination of witnesses, the other day T B Odeneal testified that he had been paid $6 000 to stop the Bulletin and throw it into bankruptcy and that of this sum $3 000 came from Harvey W Scott and $3 000 from H L Pittock, of the OREGONIAN." That there is not the least shadow or semblance of truth in the above statement of your correspondent is a fact provable by the Judge of the Court, the Jurors and by the attorneys on both sides of the case. Nothing of the sort was testified to by me. I could not so testify for the reason that I never received from H W Scott, H L Pittock or from any other person $6 000 or any other sum whatever to stop the Bulletin and throw it into bankruptcy. I never received from H W Scott any sum of money for any purpose connected with the suspension of the Bulletin. I never received from Henry L Pittock any sum of money whatever for any purpose. In fact I had not seen the last named gentleman for several weeks prior to the suspension.

WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON AS A COMPOSITOR. On Friday morning, last an elderly gentleman entered our office and said it was his birthday. He was 71 years old. Fifty years ago on the 10th of December 1825 he had attained his majority and finished his apprenticeship as a compositor in this office, having served seven years and two months. He wished to celebrate the anniversary by setting a matter where he had learned the mystery of printing and to see if his hand had forgotten its cunning. A case and a stick were accordingly furnished him but the copy he selected himself, "My Psalm" by Whittier. The gentleman proved to be a rapid and correct compositor; in fact no errors could be discovered in his proof. His name is tolerably well known in the world. It is William Lloyd Garrison. At the time when Mr Garrison was the oldest apprentice in the Herald office Joseph B Morse was the youngest and while the matter was being set Mr Morse came in and met his old fellow workman celebrating his semi centennial. William Lloyd Garrison is a native of Newburyport and was educated in its common schools.—Newburyport (Mass) Herald.

SHIPBUILDING IN OREGON

There is perhaps no State in the Union in which the business of shipbuilding, after it has been once established could be more advantageously carried on than in Oregon. All or nearly all the requisite materials are found, or can be produced here in inexhaustible quantities and of the best quality. The yellow fir has been tested in the shipyards of France, Russia, England and the United States and determined to be one of the best kinds of timber in the world for shipbuilding. In buoyancy and elasticity it excels all others, in strength, tenacity and durability it equals the oak. This timber is abundant here and cheaper than timber of equal value in any part of the world. Iron of the finest quality is also abundant, and hemp can be produced in any quantity. The natural advantages of the State for establishing manufactories are also very great. At the Cascades of the Columbia, and particularly at Oregon City, are unrivalled opportunities for the employment of water power.

The only thing we lack is a large laboring class. The chief essentials for shipbuilding exist here in abundance, but labor is scarce and high. But, should the business of building ships once be established the invariable law regulating supply and demand, would bring laborers in plenty, and the price of labor would find its level. If mechanics should learn that very much higher wages were paid here than in Maine or New York, they would soon flock here, provided they were assured that steady work would be found. The only reason why ship builders' wages are so high here now is, that there are only a few of them here, and they are enabled to keep up the prices. They are, too, obliged to ask high wages, for they are not certain of steady employment, and must charge enough for their labor not only to support themselves while working, but also when idle. If they could be sure of work all the time, they would feel no need of providing for a day of enforced idleness, and could work more cheaply, it being an undisputed maxim that steady work can be done for low wages while uncertain employment demands high pay. Hence it is evident, that, if the business should once be established and go steadily on, the wages of mechanics and also the cost of materials which would then be manufactured here, would be much less than now. This reduction in the cost of construction would add just so much to the profits of the capitalist building the ship. What that profit would be can be best ascertained by computing the cost of construction and considering her probable earnings, and in doing this it should be remembered that an Oregon ship, if built and launched at the proper season of the year, need not hoist her sails until she has her load of wheat on board and is ready to start on her voyage. There is scarcely another place in the world where ships can be built and loaded in the same port. Generally speaking, after a ship is launched she has to sail hundreds, or thousands of miles, to a distant port in search of a cargo. Ships coming here for grain have to sail thousands of miles in ballast, or with a mere nominal cargo, losing months of time. A ship built here, would take her cargo at once, and save all that expense and loss of time. All the profit arising from the carriage of grain and flour would come into the hands of our own people and not be sent abroad. What this profit is may be inferred, when it is remembered that the freight on wheat and flour to England amounts to about $18 per ton, and that during last year 75 802 tons of wheat and flour were shipped to Europe alone, besides a very large quantity to other countries. The whole of this freight —$1 366 836—goes out of the country except what is required for the ships' expenses in this port. If the ships were owned here, the whole of it, or nearly so, would be retained in the State to aid in the further development of its resources.

It may be added to these considerations that ships built of Oregon fir, according to the rules of the French Lloyds are rated A 1 for eleven years, being the longest time for which any ships are so rated.

A REVOLUTION IN TRADE

A glance at the statistics of our commerce with England during the year 1875, as compared with former years, reveals at once the fact, that our trade with that country is undergoing a great change. The exports from Great Britain to the United States are rapidly falling off, while exports from the United States to Great Britain are increasing. Some commodities which till recently could be laid down in this country from English manufactories cheaper than they could be produced here in spite of the duties, are now produced in this country for the English market. It seems scarcely credible but it is true nevertheless, that American pig iron has found during the last year a very considerable market in England. The same is true of woolen fabrics. While we still import certain qualities of woolens from England it is true also that a large amount of our goods goes to England and is worn there in preference to like goods from the home manufactories. It is stated in English papers that for common wear the American fabrics are cheaper, durability and price both considered than English and that unless the English must rs sh uld devise some way to change the current of business in this respect the balance of trade in woolen fabrics will in a few years be in favor of America.

THE COMMON UNIT PROPOSITION

The financial editor of the London Times does not believe in the American idea of adopting a common unit for money accounts for all English speaking people but the editor in chief takes the other side. The question is one on which "Union men may honestly differ" but the argument appears to us to be pretty much all on the side of the common unit. The convenience of commerce and trade is the only thing to be consulted and that would certainly be subserved by having a unit common to both countries instead of having to go through the process of reducing pounds shilling and pence to dollars and cents, or dollars and cents to pounds, shillings and pence in every business transaction between merchants of the two nations. There should be a common unit and that based upon a system of decimal multiples, so that the first process of computation would in all cases include everything in the case without any further conversion of one denomination into its equivalent in another. Whether our system of coinage or some other decimal system should be agreed on is a matter of no particular moment, as the inconvenience consequent upon the adoption of a different system based on the decimal principle would be but temporary. But the necessity of some common method of notation in our business transactions is becoming too apparent and pressing to need argument.

Mr Lane has introduced a bill in Congress for the appropriation of $25 000 for improving the navigation of the Yamhill. Whether he will be able to receive this appropriation is a matter upon which no very reliable conjecture can be made just now but it is certain that the expenditure of that amount on the Yamhill would produce as great benefits to the community immediately affected as the same expenditure in any other improvement for commercial purposes in the State. It appears strange that so little attention should have been paid to this much needed work heretofore by our members of Congress. The appropriation asked for is not large but it would do a great deal for one of the richest agricultural districts in the State.

The claim of the District of Columbia for reimbursement of money paid for the grading and paving of streets for Congressmen to walk and drive over, does not go. The ingratitude of republics finds a strong example in this case. Here are nearly three hundred M Cs daily walking and riding over the smoothest of asphaltum and the costliest of Belgian blocks laid down for them by the kind hearted Shepherd and his distinguished compatriots of the late district government and yet when these M Cs are asked to come out with enough of the peoples money to pay for the luxury they are parsimonious enough to refuse. Out upon such meanness.

The New York Herald is unkind enough to say that if the rumors of disagreement between President Grant and Secretary Bristow should prove true and if the matter should go to the extent of an open rupture, Bristow would have the precedent established by Grant during Johnson's administration for refusing to retire from the office.

The Independents of Polk county are early in the field. See their call for county convention in another column.

The Democratic State Central Committee will meet at Portland on the 10th of February.

A CORRECTION

The following, which we clip from the Salem Mercury explains itself:

Ed Mercury. In the last issue of your paper your Portland correspondent "Casterile," referring to the recent bankrupt proceedings in the matter of the Bulletin newspaper in the U S District Court makes the following utterly false statement, to-wit: During the examination of witnesses, the other day, T B Odeneal testified that he had been paid $6 000 to stop the Bulletin and throw it into bankruptcy and that of this sum $3 000 came from Harvey W Scott and $3 000 from H L Pittock of the OREGONIAN. That there is not the least shadow or semblance of truth in the above statement of your correspondent is a fact provable by the Judge of the Court, the jurors and by the attorneys on both sides of the case. Nothing of the sort was testified to by me. I could not so testify for the reason that I never received from H W Scott, H L Pittock or from any other person $6 000 or any other sum whatever, to stop the Bulletin and throw it in to bankruptcy. I never received from H W Scott any sum of money for any purpose connected with the suspension of the Bulletin. I never received from Henry L Pittock any sum of money whatever for any purpose. In fact I had not seen the last named gentleman for several weeks prior to the suspension.

WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON AS A COMPOSITOR.—On Friday morning last an elderly gentleman entered our office and said it was his birthday. He was 71 years old. Fifty years ago on the 10th of December 1825 he had attained his majority and finished his apprenticeship as a compositor in this office, having served seven years and two months. He wished to celebrate the anniversary by setting up a matter where he had learned the mystery of printing and to see if his hand had forgotten its cunning. A case and a stick were accordingly furnished him but the copy he selected himself. My Psalm, by Whittier. The gentleman proved to be a rapid and correct compositor, in fact no errors could be discovered in his proof. His name is tolerably well known in the world. It is William Lloyd Garrison. At the time when Mr Garrison was the oldest apprentice in the Herald office Joseph B Morse was the youngest and while the matter was being set Mr Morse came in and met his old fellow workman celebrating his semi-centennial. William Lloyd Garrison is a native of Newburyport and was educated in its common schools.—Newburyport (Mass) Herald.

SATURDAY MORNING JANUARY 22, 1876

THE CITY.

Training Indians for the Centennial.—In a recent number of the Chicago Times we observe the following paragraph: "Director General Goshorn of the Centennial Exposition has received a communication from a San Franciscan named McDonald which communication has been referred to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs McDonald says he has for a long time been drilling a band of Indians from nearly every tribe and desires taking a detachment of his troops, consisting of nine members male and female to Philadelphia for the purpose of exhibiting them at the Centennial and he challenges the world to excel them in military science and drill His object in exhibiting them is to demonstrate the fact that poor Lo can under proper discipline, become an expert in military science, and can be utilized for border defense. Mr. McDonald has doubtless, wasted time and money, and the final destination of his communication will probably be the waste basket." Capt. McDonald it will be remembered, was in Portland last year and exhibited a band of trained Indians.

Application for a Writ of Habeas Corpus.—An application for a writ of habeas corpus was made yesterday in the case of F F Morse, who is now in the county jail for debt. Judge Shattuck issued an order commanding Sheriff Jeffery to bring the body of F F Morse before him, in chambers, at 3 o clock P. M., for the purpose of showing cause if any why he be detained him in custody. The cause of Morse being in prison is a writ issued by Joseph Reilly, justice of the peace in and for North Portland precinct directed to Sheriff Jeffery, commanding that officer to take possession of the body of Morse and keep him in custody of the jailer until he should liquidate a judgment obtained against him in his (Reilly's) court on the 18th inst for the sum of $137 75, due Messrs. Perkins & Coggan for board, and $23 25 costs, or until he, the defendant, should be otherwise legally discharged. The matter came before Judge Shattuck yesterday afternoon, who after hearing the case took it under advisement until this morning.

Badly Crushed.—Yesterday while the ship Carisbrook Castle was swinging out from the wharf the carpenter on board that vessel was very severely injured As the vessel was moving slowly along the dock, the sides were in danger of rubbing heavily against the piles in order to prevent which, the carpenter took a fender and placed it between the wharf and the side of the ship While he was leaning over the side of the vessel and endeavoring to hold the fender in the proper position, one of his arms was caught between a pile and the railing of the ship. Before the limb could be extricated the flesh was shockingly lacerated from the wrist to the shoulder. Fortunately no bones were fractured Soon after the accident the man was removed to the hospital for the purpose of receiving proper medical treatment. Although the limb is badly bruised and crushed it is hoped it can be saved, and amputation avoided

From Willow Forks.—We are in receipt of a private letter from Willow Forks, Umatilla county, under date of the 18th, from which the following extract is made. "I have resided in this State for over twenty-two years and can say this has been the most pleasant winter I ever saw. The green grass is several inches high, and stock of all kinds is doing splendid. The prospect for good crops never looked better. The health of the county is good, and I am inclined to think it is much better than in the Willamette valley. There has not been a half dozen days since the first of last December in which a person could travel all over the country afoot without getting the soles of his boots muddy. Land is cheap here and there is room for many more people. The coldest day here this winter was 10° above zero."

Another Victim.—An individual, signing himself Andrew Astrio, writes to a San Francisco exchange from Victoria as follows "As I have never seen the name of Melchoir Brown given on the list of victims on the unfortunate Pacific, I think it to be my duty to you if ever it should concern, to say that he was one of her passengers at the time she went down. Mr. Brown was a German born about 45 years of age, by profession a cook, and had to my knowledge many friends in San Francisco He came here from Portland, Oregon, about a week before the sailing of the Pacific and stopped at my house until the last moment before the sailing of the ship. I send you this that his fate may be known to his friends in your city"

Prepaid Stations.—For the benefit of city and country merchants and shippers generally, we publish herewith a list of stations on the O & C. R. R. to and from which shipments must be prepaid Wells' Mills, Milwaukee Paper Mills, Canemah Rock Island, New Era, Canby, Barlow's Siding, Lake LaBish, Fair Grounds, Miller's Muddy Luper's, Irving, Cottage Grove, Divide, Summit

T. L. Society.—To night the Taylor street Literary Society will hold a meeting at the residence of Mrs Calef, and as some new and interesting exercises are to occur, it is desired that all the members attend A number of characters are to be enacted, games played and music provided, and a pleasant time assured to those who attend

List of Letters.—The following letters remain uncalled for at Wells Fargo & Co s express office· John Allen, Miss L. Bennett Mrs. S. H Bennett, B G Bennett, C. Beyer Burkhardt, W T Coleman, J. H Hastings, J M LaRue, Eli Morrill Mary A. Neff, Robt Porter, D Sullivan J M Swift, Edwin Smith

Steamer Detained.—The steamer City of Panama will not sail from Victoria for San Francisco until to day, having been unavoidably delayed. The passengers, many of whom are Portlanders, were expecting to sail last Thursday morning, but have been compelled to await the departure of the steamer

Song Service.—The many friends of the Song Service will be glad to know that Prof McGibeny and family have returned to the city and will give another of their delightful evenings of sacred song The service will be held at the Oro Fino theater, at 7 30 P M We predict a large attendance

Liberal Association.—The Liberal Association, at their regular meeting to morrow, will discuss the following question "Resolved That the government should tax all kinds of church property " An invitation is extended to all to attend and participate

The Sociable.—The sociable held last evening, at the First Presbyterian church was an entirely successful and thoroughly enjoyable in every particular The attendance was quite large, and the proceeds were substantial

Our Agent at Steilacoom.—Mr Hill Harmon, of Steilacoom, W T, will receive subscriptions for the Daily and Weekly Oregonian in that place and vicinity

MILITARY NOTES.

Pending the sailing of the steamer for Sitka Alaska, to which post he is ordered Post Chaplain Gamaliel Collins is temporarily assigned to duty in this city from the 9th inst

As early in the spring, as the roads are practicable for wheeled vehicles the commanding officer, Fort Klamath will send in charge of a commissioned officer and suitable guard the general prisoners (convicts) then at Fort Klamath to Fort Canby Cape Hancock Washington Territory to be delivered to the post commander which post is designated as the place of their confinement from the date of delivery It being impracticable to use rations in kind the necessary actual expenses of subsistence of the guard and prisoners en route will be paid, upon the certificate of the officer by the subsistence department.

U. S. ASSAY OFFICE AT PORTLAND.

The following petition is being circulated here, and numerously signed asking Congress to create a United States assay office in Portland

To the Honorable the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled The undersigned citizens and business men of Portland Oregon, respectfully represent that many mines of silver and gold are being constantly discovered and developed in the Pacific Northwest—embracing Oregon, Idaho and Washington Territory, Alaska and British Columbia, which together with the many mines already developed affords an annual yield of about three million dollars The Columbia river bars are rich in gold for hundreds of miles They receive deposits of float gold every annual freshet The city of Portland is the great commercial center of this extensive region It is of great importance to commerce that an United States assay office should be established at this place Your petitioners would further represent that the U S custom house at this place has suitable rooms which might be fitted up to be used for that purpose We therefore ask that your honorable body cause to be passed an act to establish such an office at the city of Portland, for which we will ever pray &c

THE COURTS

U S CIRCUIT COURT—DEADY, J

FRIDAY Jan 21 1876

Edward Loomis vs Wm Gatton, argument closed and cause submitted

U S DISTRICT COURT DEADY J

U S vs Edward Kennedy U S vs James Kelly U S vs August Johnson U S vs Fred Christensen causes placed on docket defendants all brought in and arraigned and plead not guilty and tried by the court

He is sensible who buys his wife a sewing machine that is the easiest running and the largest Such is the man who buys the Wheeler & Wilson No 7 No shuttle and no noise

Fabre & Barnes are in receipt of green turtle direct from Acapulco by every steamer which will be served in soup and steaks with their A No 1 coffee

The large sale of Elmwood collars proves their popularity If you have not yet worn them try them at once

FOR THE LADIES.

A new trimming for plain velvet bonnets is the white satin rouleau of piping, in favor several winters past

Feather trimmings prevail in the great cities, as New York, to that degree that they hurt the fur trade

The hair is worn higher and massed more toward the front of the head Short, loose curls shade the forehead instead of "bangs"

Women s gloves for street wear may be seal brown for the first dress and wood color for the second, but for visiting ivory, cream or very pale cameo tints

Colville lace a combination of silk and wool is used for barbs for the neck and to trim bonnets and coiffures and silk fichus and shades corresponding with the lace

Over skirts are never draped on both sides to correspond so that it is scarcely to be realized when examining each side separately that the over skirt is intended for one suit

When black toilets are worn in the evening, they are relieved by facing and pipings of cardinal red rose pink or sky blue this gives tone to the costume and relieves its otherwise sombre effect

Lace sleeves through which the arm is visible from the shoulder down, are as fashionable as last year and usually terminate below the elbow in ruffles very scant and ornamented with a ribbon bow

High necked dresses are gaining favor for evening wear The sleeves are often made of black or white shirred tulle trimmed with lace and insertions but to have the neck covered and the arms bare is not in good taste

Cream color and white are the popular colors this season Entire toilets are made in these hues for evening wear and trimmed with bands of velvet in dark shades White and cream colors are also used to trim dark suits such as deep blue black and brown

Flowers have rarely been used in such profusion—they follow the line of diagonal folds or scarf upon the front of the skirt simulate several aprons and either sweep off in large trails at the back, or fill in a side where the tie back has left a open space

The valois cap in fashion at Paris for street head gear is made of the same material as the dress if plain, and is adorned with a band of fur round the forehead, under which comes a border of roses and another one of crimped crape The effect is smart and fascinating

The Marie Antoinette and Pyysanna fichus are popular and are worn at theaters with bonnets A large revers made of old lace, either guipure old point d Alencon, or Malines is more liked than the fichus it forms a kind of vest over the basque waist, which is cut out square in front

A beautiful mantle for evening wear may be made of Spanish lace falling over the right and raised over the left arm Black lace is sometimes a little trying in the evening but with some flowers when worn over a low necked dress, this objection to its use is removed Such a mantle is very beautiful when made of white lace

The gold and scarlet mania is at its hight It is not uncommon to see complete costumes of navy blue or invisible green, with hat adorned by bows of scarlet ribbon and a scarlet rose or scarlet feather Creamy hats of rich velvet felt have brims faced with scarlet and filled in with a scarlet bow across which, a dagger of gold and pearl gleams

Among new kinds of ribbon are L Archiduc a beautiful quality of designed ribbon in two shades and cuir de Prusse so called because exceeding strongly Then there are gold, silver and steel lame the Salvador made of a kind of double net-work of very fine netting, and lastly the Broche, which was already in use last winter under the name of Damasse

THE TURF.

Mr Chas P Bacon received a dispatch yesterday from J J Welch who is now in San Francisco, to the effect that the well known trotting mare Bellflower, has been sold there for the sum of $5,000 Bellflower was raised near Walla Walla, and is five years old About two years ago, she was taken down to San Francisco where she remained some time and while there made a very creditable record She was brought up to this city and put under careful training for about a year and a half She trotted last fall at the State fair making good time, and also trotted against a match over the Riverside track making her mile in 2 36½ Last fall Bellflower was taken to San Francisco, and since then has won several races against some crack trotters of the California turf The large sum paid for her will show what estimate the turfmen of San Francisco placed on the mare s speed and bottom Stock raisers in Oregon should feel greatly encouraged from the very creditable record made by Bellflower and the handsome sum the nimble little mare brought Bellflower was owned by Mr Glasford, of Walla Walla

POLICE COURT NOTES.

A Miserable Life is Led by the Dyspeptic for his complaint not only prostrates the body but produces a gloomy state of mind and an irritable disposition While many articles are recommended as curatives of this disease none have met with the success which has attended the use of Dr Jayne s Alterative in conjunction with Jayne s Sanative Pills The Alterative purifies the blood gives strength to the digestive organs and imparts a healthy tone to the system the Sanative Pills change the vitiated secretions of the stomach and liver and stimulate these organs to healthy action By the combined action of these remedies, many radical cures have been effected and they are therefore confidently offered to the afflicted

Pranks of a Disordered Liver.

A disordered liver plays sad pranks with the digestive organs the bowels the kidneys and the blood and inflicts an infinite variety of unpleasant symptoms upon its unfortunate possessor among which may be mentioned yellowness of the skin and whites of the eyes furred tongue, nausea headache vertigo pain in the head side and stomach, drowsiness by day and unrest by night difficulty in getting on and even irritation of the bladder and urethra. Hostetter s Stomach Bitters discipline the rebellious organ and obviate bilious manifestations more rapidly and certainly than anything else and are far more agreeable and infinitely wholesomer than the violent evacuants with which the bilious often persecute their unfortunate bowels and stomach, under the mistaken impression that they are regulating their livers.

A Friend in Need—Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is friend in deed Who has not found it such in curing all diseases of the lungs and throat coughs, colds and pulmonary affections and last not least consumption? PLUMMER FRUIT DRYER.

As a proof of what I have heretofore stated to the people of Oregon I give below a letter from the Plummer Fruit Drying Co of East Portland After the close of business of 1875 fully endorsing it after using it one entire season and as a proof to substantiate what they say they now contemplate putting up another Dryer of the same capacity of the one they now have which will increase their capacity to five hundred bushels of apples per day Having now located here in Portland for the purpose of supplying the demand for Fruit Dryers in Oregon and Washington Territory I can supply those dryers at a cost of from $2 000 to $4 000 according to capacity Warranted to dry from 8 to 16 bushels of apples per hour at a small cost for labor and fuel These machines being so cheap and simple in construction they cannot fail to supersede all other known machines I would also say to the fruit growers that I have invented a Machine (and am now waiting for a patent) that will cut and spread the fruit on the trays with a very small amount of labor I also have invented a Peach Parer that is on an entirely new principle paring soft as well as hard does its work well with great speed and slices and pits the fruit ready for the Dryer in the best possible manner and it a great saving in quantity of fruit

FRUIT DRYER TESTIMONIALS.

EAST PORTLAND Jan 4th 1875

MR W S PLUMMER—Dear Sir As this is a time when all are much interested in Fruit Drying we think that in justice to you and for the information of the public it is but right and proper that we should give all the information that we can Now after having operated your Dryer during this season we feel warranted in saying that for the amount of money invested we still believe as we did from the start that your Dryer is the best Dryer yet introduced into this country The capacity of the Dryer we find to be about 8 eight bushels per hour The Dried fruit we claim to be as good as any though perhaps not as much bleached as the "Alden" Fruit and we are satisfied that we can produce Dried Fruit at less expense than the "Alden" The stockholders of our Company manifested their confidence in the Plummer Dryer at our meeting last Saturday by a unanimous vote to increase the capital stock $12 000 (twelve thousand dollars) for the purpose of adding one more Dryer to the present one and making other improvements for its extension We will further say that we believe that by an improvement made by the patentee in the Dryer and I am that there will be an increase in capacity and a saving of Fuel

MR PLUMMER Dear Sir I have been watching both the Alden and your Fruit Dryer the past season I visited the Alden Machine for drying fruit. I visited the Alden Dryer at Oregon City and examined the fruit dried on that Machine and I have also examined several lots of fruit on your Machine at East Portland and my opinion is that your Dryer is the better. My reasons are these Your Machine is easily managed and as economical [illegible] fruit dried [illegible] Alden Machine was first [illegible] fruit dried [illegible] is worth less for market [illegible] I can recommend your Machine for drying fruit or anything else Yours truly

MAKE ME YOUNG AGAIN

To spirits bright [illegible] and me shine
[illegible]
O[illegible] not with me efface
All that is stamped upon my soul"

Ca[illegible] not from out my heart
What now it knows of grief and pain,
And shut out manhood's darker thoughts
Restore me back to youth again?

And take me back the early dream
The buoyant hope the burning thought
I would not [illegible] those guileless hours
[illegible] it [illegible] ever taught.

[illegible] with winning smile
I will not seek her favors now —
[illegible] disdain
[illegible] brow —

[illegible] lore
[illegible] trace
Take [illegible] learning all —
But only make me young again

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] rule to kings
But give [illegible] youth again

[illegible] of speech
To move [illegible] at my will
[illegible]
[illegible] ill —

But give [illegible] back the [illegible] time
[illegible] crimson [illegible]
Inspire [illegible] noble zeal
[illegible] goal may seek

And [illegible] in a whiter robe
And lead me to a holier shrine —
Baptize me in a purer [illegible]
And tell me — I am young again

Grant me these oh! niggard Time
No more will I e'er ask of thee —
Nay! the very hills grow old

Now no more I'll wail o'er vanquished years
No more strive with longings vain —
But [illegible] how bitter is the thought
[illegible] be young again

OLD MONEY BAGS

Roger Flint was a hard man—hard as steel

"This is the way it stands Mr Beggs," he was saying one day to a man in his office, "a poor man is no man at all, and a rich man is a fool if he spends what he has My motto is get money! Get it honestly if you can If not—get it and keep it."

"And ye got it," quavered Mr Beggs with a mean twinkle in his watery eyes "Ye got it and kept it, Mr Flint Oh you're a sharp one—a reg'lar knife edger you are"

"In my younger time," continued Mr Flint with a hard smile at the other's compliments "I had some wild notions about generosity But I soon got over that folly I lost money by it If people will be poor let them go to the alms houses If they are too proud to do that let them starve and get out of the way Charity! Humbug! Why should I [illegible] for the sake of a set of lazy [illegible] [illegible] satisfied!"

Mr Beggs expressed his entire approval of these sentiments by a series of inarticulate croaks

"Now there's a fellow," continued Flint pointing at the shabby clerk "whom I took out of a charity institution when a boy I fed him, clothed him and taught him a good business But was he grateful? Not he! He complained of hard work and had vague ideas on the subject of pocket money But I have crushed all that nonsense out of him Haven't I, Jacob?"

"I [illegible]," said the shabby clerk, starting at the sound of his harsh voice but not turning his head "Oh yes, he has crushed me! Oh certainly!" His depressed manner and care worn face sufficiently attested the truth of his words

"Now," said Flint turning suddenly upon his friend and nearly upsetting him with the shock, "what did you come here for to night? Not to be sociable Not you You are up to some game, Simon Beggs, I see it in your face Perhaps I know what it is already But out with it anyway"

"What a knowin un you are!" croaked Beggs, rubbing his lean hands together "What an up and down sticker!"

Beggs shifted uneasily in his chair, and seemed very uncomfortable "Your daughter is a very fine gal," he quavered "an un common fine gal She ought to have a good husband, one as would be very lovin and kind to her."

"Like yourself for instance," returned Mr. Flint, with an ironic smile "Well, go on"

"Suppose," continued Beggs more uneasily than ever, "suppose, for argeyment's sake, I was to want her for my wife, what little sum would you feel disposed to give her?"

The smile left Mr Flint's face and a grim frown succeeded it.

"Not one cent! sir!—not one cent!" he answered sharply "Take her as she is, or let her alone I'm in no hurry to part with her She earns her own living and more and she is a good daughter to me besides

Mr Beggs shrunk into his shrunken self at the other's vehemence, rubbed his head feebly and groaned Then, if such a dingy old scare crow could be said to do so he brightened up and croaked "Oh she earns her own livin' does she? And more! Not as I would expect her to do that after we was married Oh no! And more! See here, Mr Flint I'll take her if she's willin'"

Mr Flint's face expressed considerable satisfaction as he answered

"She will be willing She will do whatever I think is best for her Jacob go call Jessie"

The clerk who had been rattling the papers on his desk in a strange nervous way got hastily off his stool and left the room

Presently he returned with a pretty mild eyed young girl, who came and seated herself silently at her father's side If ever features of stone made a miserable attempt to look kind Roger Flint's did then And when he spoke there was something very like tenderness in his grating voice absolutely

"Jessie," he said, "have you ever thought of marrying?"

"If I have father," answered she with a slight blush, "the thought has been so speedily banished by a determination never to leave you that it could hardly be called a thought at all."

"A girl's whim, and of no weight in the plans I have formed for your benefit All your life I have kept before your eyes the value of money and the utter worthlessness of everything else without it Therefore in choosing a husband for you I have cast aside all romantic and unpracticable considerations and secured for you—money"

The girl's face had grown as white as death and she sat staring at him with open fright ened eyes.

"Simon Beggs," continued her father his voice growing drier and harsher as he proceeded "is no very handsome object to look at I admit but he is rich and a driveling old dotard and the woman that marries him can easily control both him and his money if she will

Beggs grinned and chuckled as if he had listened to the most glowing panegyric possible The girl made no reply Once while he spoke, she turned her eyes toward the clerk at his desk and then was motionless

"[illegible]," said Flint with a grim attempt at jocularity "he has not half a dozen years in him at best, and then—a rich young widow eh Jessie?

"I would rather die as my mother did—a thousand thousand times rather," said Jessie in a low choked voice putting both trembling hands upon his arm

"Nonsense!" retorted her father harshly shaking her off "Once married you will laugh at this folly and thank me for it [illegible] Now go up stairs and dry your eyes for the matter is settled I tell you"

She arose and looked fixedly at him a moment Then seeing the iron determination in his face she turned and with a low [illegible] left the room When she was gone the clerk, who had been standing near his desk with clenched hands and flushed [illegible], hastily [illegible] his stool and [illegible]

[illegible] Beggs

The [illegible] reply upon Mr Flint's lips was interrupted by the opening of the office door and the entrance of a young lady muffled and furred against the weather What a bright little creature she was What eyes—now sharp and sly as a bird's now soft and gentle as it is possible for woman's eyes to be! What a firm little figure, carried with an air of dignity that means just nothing at all! What curls! What lips! Gracious!

"How do you do Mr Jacob?" she said, addressing the clerk first of all and then bowing to Mr Flint "And this is your friend?" she continued, looking straight into Mr Beggs face, as he wriggled at his feet to be introduced "I can't say that I am happy to know him Any relation to the Crow family? No indeed A very strong resemblance then Is Jessie up stairs Mr Flint? I will go up and see her, if you please" And with a laugh and a shake of the dark curls she was out of the room—leaving Mr. Beggs breathless and crestfallen

"I don't like Mrs Heyward if that's her name," he mumbled, trying to recover his composure But she had so startled and shaken him that presently he shambled off home

When the door rattled behind him the clerk got down from his stool and approached his master with a bit of paper in his hand

"Will you write down the value of a soul?" he said raising his eyes

"The value of a soul! How should I know the value of a soul"

"Oh don't you?" returned the clerk still with his eyes doggedly cast down "I thought you must, because you sold one just now—your daughter's"

Flint started forward as if he would have struck him but he restrained himself and cried in a threatening voice

"Jacob Sterling if you are a fool don't make it so plain or you will get yourself into trouble Now go to bed you beggar [illegible] d'ye hear?"

Jacob made no reply but went slowly away looking more careworn and depressed than ever And Mr Flint standing before the fire with an expression of doubt and satisfaction strangely mixed upon his features, fell into a reverie

A week rolled on and one morning Roger Flint entered his office and in tones which he vainly endeavored to render as harsh and stern as usual said

"Jacob have you seen Jessie this morning?"

Jacob answered "No"

"Then!" exclaimed Flint suddenly breaking down, "she has left us—for what? Jacob! Jacob! See here's a note which she left upon my table! Read it"

With a shaking hand Jacob took it and read

"My dear dear father—doubly dear to me now that I have left you—try oh, try to believe [illegible] think that I strove hard—indeed I did—to obey your wishes but had not strength to do it Oh my dearest now that by my own weakness and wickedness I have set a gulf between us perhaps never to be crossed I beg and pray you to shake off that fearful love of gain which has made us all so wretched and be your own good gentle self again Be kinder to Jacob—poor Jacob—for I loved him father, and forgive, oh forgive your child!"

The two men stood staring at each other with a fearful thought burning in their eyes for a long breathless moment Then as if he had dashed it aside with his clenched hand the depressed shrinking air was gone from Jacob all that was manly and noble in him came uppermost in his strong sorrow and he whose patient drudge he had always been cowered before his dilating eye

"Wretch!" he shouted, "see what your accursed money has done for you You would have made your daughter's life a hell for it! You would have given her, body and soul to a thing a thousand times more degraded than a beast for it! You have held it up to her daily as an idol to be worshipped before Heaven! Are you satisfied?

"I meant it for her good—indeed I did," groaned Flint

"Oh man, man! what are you now? Old alone in the world standing in your grave hated and despised by all of your kind Now go to your money and seek consolation in it if you can Prostrate yourself before it will it bring her back to you or to me who loved her footprints on that dirty floor more than you loved her soul? Pray to it weep to it will it make her what she was? Oh, poor misled ill used girl

So crying out as if his heart were broken he sank into a chair and burst into tears

For a long while the old man stood silent, with a bewildered look in his face then he started toward the door bare-headed as he was

"Where are you going?" asked Jacob, detaining him

"I am going to find my child," he said brokenly "I am going to bring her back and try through all the years of my worthless life to atone for the wrong I have done her Jacob will you go with me?

For many years after this people wondered at two strange figures whom they encountered in the streets—a haggard white-haired old man, supported by a younger one who wandered hither and thither, on broad thoroughfares and in narrow byways, peering with eager eyes into the faces of all they met But no trace of her they sought so anxiously was found Night after night they placed a light in the office window, vaguely hoping that she might see its glimmer, and feeling the longing it expressed, return to them But she never came

Avarice in Robert Flint, had so sapped and minced his nobler feelings that when it was torn out of him at one fierce clutch it left him weaker than a child to bear his trouble Worn with fatigue heartsick with fruitless expectation he broke down completely and took his bed with no wish to rise again And Jacob Sterling more manly in his patient sorrow than he had ever been before sat by and tended him

"Jacob," he said one afternoon a few weeks after his daughter's disappearance, "Jacob I dreamt last night that our poor girl had come back to us and I was weeping bitterly to think of all the wrong and sorrow I had brought upon her young life And I thought that she put her arm around my neck and whispered 'All a dream dear father' he comforted for it was all a dream Jacob," he said suddenly interrupting himself "I wish I could see her before I die"

Jacob made no answer

"If she ever returns to you when I am gone," he continued with a sigh "take her in shelter her tenderly from the world, keep her from her own thoughts and be a brother to her God knows she will need it! Tell her that her father loved her in spite of his sin and folly Tell her that he never blamed her but himself and that his only wish was that he might see her to ask her pardon before he died Will you Jacob?

"I will!" answered Jacob in a low voice Then arising and going into the office he sat himself down at his old desk and rested his head on his arms in gloomy thought He had been so but a moment when the door opened and Mrs Heyward entered and though the day was dark a sunbeam seemed to have entered too

The smile left her lips as she saw the haggard face he turned toward her

"What is it, Mr Jacob? Are you not well?"

"Yes," he answered indifferently, "I am well"

"And Jessie?" she inquired with a singular look

"She has left us," he cried brokenly "Don't ask any more"

There were tears in the little woman's eyes and yet she was laughing too

"That wretched old father of hers"

"A changed man," he interrupted "kinder and better in every way but failing rapidly under the shock

"Failing?" echoed the lady turning very pale and trembling very much Then without another word she turned and ran out of the room

Night had fallen again and the old man was lying on his sofa in the little back room with Jacob sitting silently near him when the door opened and three persons came in They were Mrs Heyward a tall young man and a female figure closely veiled

"Mr Flint," began the lady sharply "you are not the mean, covetous hard old man you were are you?

"No," answered Flint humbly

"And you would be kinder to your daughter if you had her back again would you?

"Yes But God forgive me it is too late to talk of that"

"Then there!" she cried choking and gasping in her emotion "take her"

And with a low cry the veiled figure fell at the old man's side and took his head to her breast

"My child!" he cried weeping bitterly, "my little child!"

"A dream dear father," sobbed the girl "all a terrible dream at [illegible] forgive me for leaving you"

"Tell him," said the tall young man [illegible]

"Listen you bad old creature," said Mrs Heyward twisting her dear little face into all sorts of shapes to keep from crying too "On [illegible] and [illegible] your daughter [illegible] because you were bent on marrying her to that hideous old crow friend of yours When I knew that it was for his money I was sure that you would never soften to any entreaty she could make I was mad I raved and stormed awful and then went home and told my old boy all about it

Her old boy otherwise the tall young man nodded admiringly

"I asked him if nothing could be done to save her from the misery to which you were driving her 'Let her elope' said he in his dear stupid way 'let her leave the old rascal and if he loves his child as most men however hardened do he will relent' And so we planned between us how it should be done I persuaded her to meet him, unknown to you, and at last he consented My husband," laying her hand proudly on his arm "whom you have never seen was the man she ran away with and our home was her asylum She pined for the father who was not deserving of her love she pined for the home that had never been a happy one and—and —here the little creature sobbed and laughed together—and we have brought her back to you this bright and merry Christmas day, and never never wrong her so again

When she had finished Roger Flint slowly arose and deliberately turning about pummeled his pillows until he was out of breath

"There," he said beaming all over "lies old Roger Flint that scheming old miser dead as a [illegible] And here," tapping himself "is the new Roger Flint who with God's help will be a kinder and a better man" Then how he laughed! such laughs as hadn't come out of that dry throat in years How he hugged them all aye even that fly young man himself! How he made a perfect jolly dervish of himself about the room

"Jacob," he said stopping suddenly "I owe you a great debt accumulated in long years of harshness and cruelty I'm going to pay that debt Jacob every penny of it And here," leading forward his blushing daughter—"is the first installment Then turning to the others he continued "I have worn spectacles made of the [illegible] passions of my heart, all my life They have blinded me to all the good and [illegible] things of which this world [illegible] full But they are gone broken cast aside forever and oh! my friends I am a happy old man

So had sorrow the power to resurrect the [illegible] nobler things buried under many a [illegible] year and make them live again So had sorrow the power to lay the first broad stone of a clear wide road to heaven —Norris' Sunday Times
